ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We would like to acknowledge a number of individuals and organizations for their past or current support of and contributions to the Human Freedom Index, copublished by the Fraser Institute and the Cato Institute.

We are grateful to Ryan Murphy for collecting and compiling the data for this year's edition, including updating the report with some new and more reliable data streams.

Our Cato colleagues Guillermina Sutter Schneider and Luis Ahumada deserve special thanks for greatly improving the process, design, and quality of the production.

Thanks also to Amberlea Schaab, former Fraser director of production and marketing, for overseeing the cover design; to Fraser's Peng Wei for designing the cover; and to Lindsay Donofrio, Cato's director of editorial production, for ably shepherding the index to publication.

Our index builds on the work of the Fraser Institute's economic freedom project; thus, we owe a debt of gratitude to Michael Walker, the Institute's former executive director and initiator of that research program, and to the long-time authors of the annual Economic Freedom of the World report, James Gwartney, Robert Lawson, and Joshua Hall. All of them laid the groundwork for this report and generously contributed their time and advice to its creation.

We thank Tanja Porčnik for her contributions to previous editions of the index. We are grateful also to the Liberales Institut at the Friedrich Naumann Foundation for Freedom, a previous copublisher of this report, for its support, and to Detmar Doering, former director at the Institut and an early and active champion of this project.

Andrei Illarionov, a senior fellow at the Cato Institute, was an enthusiastic and active proponent of this project, and his insights helped shape the content and structure of the index. We thank him for helping to initiate this research and for being a valuable source of input and advice.

Finally, we would like to acknowledge the sponsors of—and numerous scholars who participated in—the seminars out of which this index arose: the first, in Atlanta, sponsored by Liberty Fund; three in Potsdam, sponsored by the Liberales Institut; and one in Washington, DC, sponsored by the Cato Institute.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Human Freedom Index (HFI) presents a broad measure of human freedom, understood as the absence of coercive constraint. This sixth annual index uses 76 distinct indicators of personal and economic freedom in the following areas:

- Rule of Law
- Security and Safety
- Movement
- Religion
- Association, Assembly, and Civil Society
- Expression and Information
- Identity and Relationships
- Size of Government
- Legal System and Property Rights
- Access to Sound Money
- Freedom to Trade Internationally
- Regulation of Credit, Labor, and Business

The HFI is the most comprehensive freedom index so far created for a globally meaningful set of countries representing 94 percent of the world's population. The HFI covers 162 countries for 2018, the most recent year for which sufficient data are available. The index ranks countries beginning in 2008, the earliest year for which a robust enough index could be produced.

On a scale of 0 to 10, where 10 represents more freedom, the average human freedom rating for 162 countries in 2018 was 6.93. Among countries included in this report, the level of freedom has scarcely improved (0.01) compared with 2017, with 87 countries increasing their ratings and 70 decreasing. Comparing all the countries for which we have the same data available since 2008, the level of global freedom has decreased slightly (-0.04), with 70 countries in the index increasing their ratings and 70 decreasing.

The data show that there is an unequal distribution of freedom in the world, with only 15 percent of the world's population living in the top quartile of countries in the HFI and 34 percent living in the bottom quartile. The gap in human freedom between the most free and the least free countries has widened since 2008, increasing by 6 percent when comparing the top and bottom 10 percent of nations in the HFI.

The jurisdictions that took the top 10 places, in order, were New Zealand, Switzerland, Hong Kong, Denmark, Australia, Canada, Ireland, Estonia, and Germany and Sweden (tied in 9th place). Selected countries rank as follows: Japan (11), the United Kingdom and the United States (tied in 17th place), Taiwan (19), South Korea (26), Chile (30), France (33), South Africa (68), Argentina (70), Mexico (86), Brazil (88), Kenya (93), India (111), Russia (115), Turkey (119), China (129), Saudi Arabia (151), Egypt (157), Iran (158), Venezuela (160), and Syria (162).

Out of 10 regions, the regions with the highest levels of freedom are North America (Canada and the United States), Western Europe, and East Asia. The lowest levels are in the Middle East and North Africa, sub-Saharan Africa, and South Asia. Women-specific freedoms, as measured by five indicators in the index, are strongest in North America, Western Europe, and East Asia and are least protected in the Middle East and North Africa, sub-Saharan Africa, and South Asia.

Countries in the top quartile of freedom enjoy a significantly higher average per capita income ($50,340) than those in other quartiles; the average per capita income in the least free quartile is $7,720.

The HFI also finds a strong relationship between human freedom and democracy. Hong Kong is an outlier in this regard. Although Hong Kong's ratings and rankings have decreased since 2008, the impact of the Chinese Communist Party's unprecedented interventions in the territory in 2019 and 2020 are not reflected in this year's report (which, as noted, is based on 2018 data). Those recent events will likely decrease Hong Kong's score noticeably in the future.

The findings in the HFI suggest that freedom plays an important role in human well-being, and they offer opportunities for further research into the complex ways in which freedom influences, and can be influenced by, political regimes, economic development, and the whole range of indicators of human well-being.

THE HUMAN FREEDOM INDEX 2020

THE SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT

This sixth annual report presents a broad measure of human freedom around the world. It builds on a multiyear program of research and discussions held in Europe and North America involving scholars from many disciplines and countries. It uses, adapts, and evolves the methodologies that emerged from the decades-long work of the Fraser Institute to define and measure economic freedom with the Economic Freedom of the World index.¹ The economic freedom project has demonstrated the power of such measurement to increase understanding about the concept of freedom and its contribution to human well-being.

A central purpose of this report is to paint a broad but reasonably accurate picture of the extent of overall freedom in the world. A larger purpose is to more carefully explore what we mean by freedom and to better understand its relationship to any number of other social and economic phenomena. This research could also help us more objectively observe the ways in which various freedoms—be they economic or civil, for example—interact with one another. We hope that this index will become a resource for scholars, policymakers, and interested laypeople alike and that its value will increase as it is annually updated, thus allowing us to observe numerous relationships through time.

The Human Freedom Index casts a wide net in an attempt to capture as broad a set of freedoms as could be clearly identified and measured. Some freedoms that could be clearly identified, such as the freedom to use drugs, could not be included because internationally comparable data could not be found. In other cases, data and clarity could be achieved for too few countries to satisfy the goal of making a global index.

That said, we and the authors of the other preliminary papers and indexes that have contributed to the creation of this index recognize that the global characterization of the state of human freedom published here is a work in progress.² It is published with satisfaction but also with humility. We believe that we have constructed an index that provides a solid foundation for the ensuing work of refinement and recalibration in the face of new data sources or improved understanding as time passes. In that spirit, we welcome feedback, which may be appropriate in further consideration of the data found in the index and published in this volume.

DEFINING AND MEASURING FREEDOM

The contest between liberty and power has been ongoing for millennia. For just as long, it has inspired competing conceptions of freedom. Plato and Hobbes, for example, thought that extensive or absolutist rule over society was compatible with their definition of freedom because in their view it would prevent society from descending into violence or chaos, which they considered more detrimental to freedom than a powerful state.

The contest between liberty and power has been ongoing for millennia.

Others, such as the 6th-century BCE Chinese philosopher Lao-tzu and the 16th-century Spanish scholastics, expressed and developed ideas consistent with the view of the father of modern political philosophy, John Locke, that freedom implies that an individual not “be subject to the arbitrary Will of another, but freely follow his own.”³

This index follows that latter tradition, which in the past several hundred years has shaped the modern liberal world. Freedom in our usage is a social concept that recognizes the dignity of individuals and is defined by the absence of coercive constraint.⁴ (That contrasts with a mechanistic concept whereby anything that limits a person’s ability to do what they want—be it a natural, physical barrier or another person who happens to be standing in their way—is considered an infringement on their freedom.) Freedom thus implies that individuals have the right to lead their lives as they wish as long as they respect the equal rights of others.

Isaiah Berlin best elucidated this notion of freedom, commonly known as negative liberty.⁵ In the simplest terms, negative liberty means noninterference by others. Berlin contrasts that type of liberty with positive liberty, which requires the removal of constraints that impede one’s personal improvement or the fulfillment of his or her potential as the individual understands it. When positive liberty, however, is imposed by others, it undermines negative liberty because individuals naturally have conflicting views on whether and how to achieve self-improvement. As in the case of the totalitarian systems of the 20th century, this discrepancy allows rulers to ignore the wishes of people and commit torture and other atrocities in the name of some higher form of freedom. Berlin further warned, as did F. A. Hayek, against the common tendency to call other good things—think of income or housing, for example—“freedom,” because this merely causes confusion.⁶

Negative liberty “comes in only one flavor—the lack of constraint imposed on the individual”⁷—whereas positive freedom is far more likely to mean different things to different people and thus cannot be measured independent of the goals that conflicting ideologies or groups might identify with freedom.

This index is thus an attempt to measure the extent to which the negative rights of individuals are respected in the countries observed. By negative rights, we mean freedom from interference—predominantly by government—in people's right to choose to do, say, or think anything they want, provided that it does not infringe on the rights of others to do likewise. These rights protect freedoms such as freedom of religion, freedom of speech, freedom of assembly, sexual freedom, economic freedom, and so on. Some of the rights that individuals legitimately claim depend partially or wholly on action by government to be realized. The right to personal security is the most important, but security in one's property rights and the rule of law also require government action.

While aspects of liberty associated with democracy and political freedom—freedom of speech, assembly, and public demonstration—are included in this index, democracy or political freedom is not. Political freedom is important, but it does not mean democracy alone or unrestrained democracy. It is ideally some combination of the division of power, limited government, decentralization, and structural characteristics designed to control the powers of the majority. For example, countries such as Canada and the United States have democratic elections and constitutional constraint as well as separation of powers and decentralization. The United Kingdom has checks and balances and other limits on power, but it has no written constitution. The issue of how political freedom can best be determined and which of its forms is most consistent with personal, economic, and civil freedom is a major area of ongoing research. This report does not address that topic directly.

However, it is hoped that the data provided here will assist researchers as they seek to determine the political structure most consistent with political freedom and the sustainability of personal, economic, and civil freedom. In that spirit, we look at the relationship between human freedom and democracy in the final section of this report.⁸

We use the following criteria to select data for the index: the data come from credible external sources and, for the sake of objectivity, are not generated by us; the index is transparent on methodology and sources; and the report covers as large a number of countries over as long a time period as is possible given the data available. As previously noted, we generally measure official restrictions on freedom, although some measures capture social or nonofficial violations of liberty (e.g., violence or conflict measures).

This index fills a gap in the literature by examining overall freedom, including economic and other human freedoms. Existing economic freedom indexes examine only the former, of course. Similarly, other surveys of freedom focus on subsets of freedom that exclude economic freedom. Yet all these freedoms are crucial.

Freedom in our usage
is a social concept that recognizes the dignity of individuals.

In fact, early systemic writings on freedom in the Enlightenment often focused on economic liberalism, or what we would identify with economic freedom, as an intrinsic part of overall freedom. This index thus for the first time develops a broad measure of human freedom rather than select aspects of it. We combine economic freedom measures from the Economic Freedom of the World index with measures of what we call personal freedoms. Our definition of economic freedom is that of James Gwartney, Robert Lawson, and Walter Block: “Individuals have economic freedom when property they acquire without the use of force, fraud, or theft is protected from physical invasions by others and they are free to use, exchange, or give their property as long as their actions do not violate the identical rights of others.”⁹ Economic freedom thus exists when there is voluntary exchange, competition, personal choice, and protection of persons and their property.

One of the biggest challenges in constructing any index is the organization and weighting of the variables. Our guiding principle is that the structure should be simple and transparent. All the data that we use in the index are available and their organization clearly presented. This means that other researchers may restructure the index to their own preferences. After long discussions with our advisory group, we believe the structure and weighting we have chosen, if not perfect for everyone, makes sense and is consistent with the literature on freedom.¹⁰

The economic freedom subindex receives half the weight in the overall index, while safety and security and other personal freedoms that make up the personal freedom subindex receive the remaining weight. We weigh economic and all personal freedoms in our index equally for two reasons. First, economic activities arguably predominate in the everyday lives of most people as they seek, at a minimum, to survive and to otherwise improve their welfare. Thus, the strong weighting for economic freedom reflects this consideration about how we live our lives.

Second, economic freedom decreases the dependence of individuals on government or other potential forces in society that would restrict liberty or attempt to centralize power. As such, economic freedom is not just inherently valuable; it empowers individuals to exercise other freedoms. Thus, the weighting reflects how economic freedom interacts with other freedoms. This point is illustrated by a remark of F. A. Hayek’s: “A complete monopoly of employment . . . would possess unlimited powers of coercion. As Leon Trotsky discovered: ‘In a country where the sole employer is the state, opposition means

is not just inherently valuable; it empowers
individuals to exercise
other freedoms.

death by slow starvation. The old principle, who does not work shall not eat, has been replaced by a new one: who does not obey shall not eat.”¹¹

That is an extreme case, but it illustrates the broader point that where economic freedom is limited, the government or powerful cliques possess great control over where you work, how much you are paid, whether you are able to find employment in the formal economy (with many attendant benefits), whether you get a promotion, where you live (and whether you are subsidized), what kind of job you have, whether you are able to adequately feed and clothe your family, and so on. In the absence of economic freedom, the powers that be have many tools of coercion to block other freedoms. These tools of coercion fade as people gain the power to make their own economic decisions.

We therefore equally weigh economic freedom because of its central importance in daily life and because it enables other freedoms. This weighting, like any weighting in any index, will not be perfect, but we believe it is a good approximation of how people live their lives and of the relation between economic and other freedoms.

We use 2018 as the latest year in our index because it is the most recent year for which sufficient data are available. For the personal freedom subindex, we use 33 variables covering 141 countries for the year 2008. The index covers an increasing number of countries for subsequent years. For the year 2018, we use 34 personal freedom variables covering 162 countries that represent 94 percent of the world’s population. In selecting the countries, we limit ourselves to those that are presented in the Economic Freedom of the World report. In selecting time periods, we use 2008 as the earliest year for which we are able to produce a robust enough index (many indexes of civil or other liberties are relatively new for a large number of countries).

In the personal freedom index, we have two equally weighted parts. The first is legal protection and security, made up of Rule of Law and Security and Safety. The other half of the personal freedom index is made up of specific personal freedoms: Movement; Religion; Association, Assembly, and Civil Society; Expression and Information; and Identity and Relationships.

This too, we believe, provides an advance over other freedom indexes, which fail to account for the interaction between the rule of law and security on the one hand and specific freedoms on the other. Without the rule of law and security, specific freedoms cannot, in a practical sense, be lived out. The rule of law and security are essential to provide reasonable assurance that life is protected. Security and safety are fundamental for survival and for the exercise of a vast array of freedoms. The rule of law, by providing predictable order and reducing arbitrary conduct by the authorities, further facilitates an environment in which freedoms are safeguarded. Without security or the rule of law, liberty is degraded or even meaningless. The most famous expression of this is perhaps found in Locke, who conceptualized the rule of law and security as a unified bundle, just as we do:

The end of law is not to abolish or restrain, but to preserve and enlarge freedom: for in all the states of created beings capable of laws, “where there is no law, there is no freedom;” for liberty is to be free from restraint and violence from others; which cannot be where there is not law: but freedom is not, as we are told, “a liberty for every man to do what he lists;” (for who could be free, when every other man’s humour might domineer over him?) but a liberty to dispose, and order as he lists, his person, actions, possessions, and his whole property, within the allowance of those laws under which he is, and therein not to be subject to the arbitrary will of another, but freely follow his own.¹²

A security state may increase or appear to increase some aspects of safety, but it would curtail freedoms by empowering the state to violate rights. Thus, legal security and specific personal freedoms are both necessary conditions for high levels of personal freedom. We believe the equal weighting provides a reasonable approximation of this interaction.

The index is derived from a total of 76 distinct indicators (34 from the personal freedom subindex and 42 from the economic freedom subindex) covering 162 countries. (Table 1 outlines the categories and the components in each category of the personal freedom and economic freedom subindexes.) Each indicator is rated on a 0–10 scale, with 10 representing the most freedom. We average the main components in each category to produce a rating for each of the categories. To produce a final rating on the personal freedom subindex, we average the Rule of Law and the Security and Safety categories and average that rating with the average of the remaining categories in the subindex. In the economic freedom subindex, we have five equally weighted parts: Size of Government, Legal System and Property Rights, Sound Money, Freedom to Trade Internationally, and Regulation. To produce the Human Freedom Index, we average the final country ratings of the economic and personal freedom subindexes.

WHAT THE INDEX MEASURES

The HFI measures economic freedoms such as the freedom to trade or to use sound money, and it captures the degree to which people are free to enjoy the major freedoms often referred to as civil liberties—freedom of speech, religion, association, and assembly—in the countries in the survey. In addition, it includes indicators on rule of law, crime and violence, freedom of movement, and legal discrimination against same-sex relationships. We also include five variables pertaining to women-specific freedoms that are found in various categories of the index.

We would have liked to have included other important indicators, such as those quantifying drug and alcohol prohibition, but we found no reliable data sources that conformed to our methodological principles. What follows is a brief description and justification of the data we use in the personal freedom subindex, as well as a summary of the economic freedom indicators that make up the rest of the Human Freedom Index.

Rule of Law

The rule of law is an essential condition of freedom that protects the individual from coercion by others. John Locke's emphasis on the importance of law in securing and enlarging freedom, cited previously, is an early formulation of that concept. A society ruled "by law, not men" implies that laws apply to everybody, including the authorities; that they be publicly known and understood; and that they limit the arbitrary decisions of rulers. To further increase the scope of individual freedom and reduce potential rule by personal will, Hayek proposed that laws be general and abstract—that is, that they be ignorant of particular cases and "not single out any particular persons or group of persons."¹³ The stated attributes also provide a social order that allows people to more easily pursue their individual ends. Individual freedom is therefore dependent on the rule of law, a broad concept that encompasses due process, equal treatment under the law, accountability of government officials, and notions of fairness, predictability, and justice.

We use indicators from the World Justice Project's (WJP) Rule of Law Index that are consistent with our definition of freedom.¹⁴ For the countries not included in the WJP index, we derive the Rule of Law ratings by regressing the WJP measures we constructed with the rule of law measures from the World Bank's Worldwide Governance Indicators.¹⁵

It should be noted that the Economic Freedom of the World index includes nine components in the area of "Legal System and Property Rights" that seek to measure "how effectively the protective functions of government are performed." Thus, the rule of law measures included in the personal freedom subindex add to those in the economic freedom subindex.

The first component rates what we have termed procedural justice. It is composed of the average of three indicators measuring "the right to life and security" of a person; "due process of law and rights of the accused"; and "freedom from arbitrary interference with privacy." The first of those indicators refers to violations by the police or government when conducting an arrest or a search, for example. The second indicator refers to such issues as the extent to which police or the authorities respect the presumption of innocence, arrest people on genuine and formally declared charges, treat suspects humanely in custody, provide the accused full access to evidence, and the like. The third indicator refers to such violations as governments wiretapping private communications without judicial authorization.

The second component rates civil justice on such issues as whether it is free of discrimination, corruption, and improper government influence. It also measures the extent to which alternative dispute resolution mechanisms are accessible, impartial, and effective. The third component measures the criminal justice system on such issues as its impartiality, its level of corruption, and the degree to which improper government influence is present.

By including the Rule of Law category, the index more fully captures the extent to which people are exposed to abuse by the authorities, and therefore it provides a measure of whether and by how much one is “subject to another man’s will,”¹⁶ to use Hayek’s expression. The indicators we use not only rate the degree to which the rule of law may be undermined; they also measure negative rights. Like security and safety, explained next, the rule of law concept included here significantly expands the scope of freedom by limiting coercion from a diversity of potential sources, including the most powerful entities or individuals in society, thus encouraging other freedoms to flourish.

Security and Safety

The rights to life and to safety from physical aggression have long been recognized as fundamental to liberty. Violence of any kind, except in self-defense or in the administration of justice, reduces personal freedom or, in the case of violence that results in death, eliminates it altogether. In societies with low levels of personal safety and physical security from harm, it is difficult to exercise other freedoms, or even to survive. Like the rule of law, security and safety are thus important in safeguarding overall freedom. (Indeed, the provision of domestic and national security is a service that most classical liberals consider a proper function of government.) Unlike the Rule of Law category, which concerns rules that seek to reduce coercion, the Security and Safety category measures actual crimes committed. It attempts to measure the degree to which people who have not violated the equal rights of others are physically assaulted, kidnapped, or killed, or their physical integrity or safety is otherwise violated. Because security is necessary to fully exercise the whole array of freedoms, we give this category equal weight to the Rule of Law category, and both together are weighed equally with the rest of the personal freedom index.

Whether perpetrated by ordinary criminals, governments, organized gangs, political groups, or individuals following tradition, crime and physical transgressions reduce personal freedom in any society. The first component measures the homicide rate. Here we ignore optimal-level-of-crime considerations or, as with the Rule of Law category, any account of the use of public resources to provide a public good intended to enhance freedom but that by its nature (taxation) represents a reduction in freedom.¹⁷

The second component measures disappearances, conflicts, and terrorism. It is made up of a number of variables. The first measures politically motivated disappearances. The following two indicators—violent conflicts and internally organized conflicts—measure the extent to which war or armed conflict with internal or external aggressors impinges on personal freedom in observed countries. The violent conflicts variable reflects battle-related deaths per capita. For the level of internally organized conflict, we use a “qualitative assessment of the intensity of conflicts within” each country used by the Institute for Economics and Peace’s Global Peace Index but derived by the Economist Intelligence Unit (EIU). The next two indicators rate the level of fatalities and injuries that result from terrorism. Those figures, from the University of Maryland’s Global Terrorism Database, include deaths and injuries of both perpetrators and victims.

The next component rates women’s security. It is made up of two variables. The first measures the prevalence of female genital mutilation among the population of women aged 15–49 years in a given country. The second indicator measures whether either the legal system or religious and traditional laws and practices favor males over widows and daughters in inheritance matters. Favoring males is an infringement on the liberty of widows and of parents and the daughters to whom they might otherwise choose to bequeath their assets; in many countries women are subordinate to the power of men, often putting them in economically precarious or physically vulnerable situations.

Movement

The freedom to travel is a basic human right and essential to a free society. Governments that restrict people’s movement greatly limit the scope of overall liberty because those limits severely reduce the ability of people to engage in a wide range of peaceful activities of their choosing. The first two indicators in this category rate the freedom of domestic movement and the freedom to leave the country, respectively. The third component, women’s movement, measures the extent to which women can “move freely outside of the house.”

Religion

Free societies respect the right to practice a religion of one’s choosing. The exercise of religion can be both a supremely private matter involving a person's strongest beliefs and a social affair practiced in an organized way among larger groups. Restrictions on that fundamental freedom have been the source of some of the bloodiest and most drawn-out conflicts throughout history, and they continue to animate discord in numerous countries today.

We use four components that produce a robust measure of religious freedom. The first broadly rates the extent of freedom of religion in society, including the right to practice and choose one's religion and to proselytize peacefully. The next component gauges the repression of religious organizations by government. The third component relates to infringements on religious freedom characterized by harassment and physical hostility. Not only governments, but also individuals, members of opposing religions, and other groups in society might perpetrate those violations. Last, we measure restrictions on religion that are of a legal or regulatory nature.

Association, Assembly, and Civil Society

The freedom to associate and assemble with peaceful individuals or organizations of one's choice and to form or join organizations for political, commercial, or other ends is an essential part of individual freedom and a basis of civil society. This category is made up of the following components: the freedom of civil society organizations to enter and exit public life; freedom of assembly; freedom to form political parties, including the extent to which parties are banned or face barriers; autonomy of opposition parties; and government repression of civil society.

Expression and Information

This category measures a broad range of freedom, including that affecting personal expression, the press, and use of the internet.

Press killed refers to murders of journalists “in retribution for, or to prevent, news coverage or commentary” and journalists killed on dangerous assignments as documented by the Committee to Protect Journalists. Press jailed refers to the number of journalists imprisoned, as documented by the same source. The media freedom indicator is an assessment by Freedom House of a range of issues, including the extent of censorship and self-censorship among journalists and the press, the use of security or other laws to punish journalists, and other laws and regulations that influence media content. It also captures the degree to which political pressure comes to bear on media coverage and takes into account state and nonstate harassment of, and violence toward, journalists.

The freedom to associate and assemble is an essential part of individual freedom and a basis of civil society.

The next two indicators are freedom of access to cable/satellite, which often includes foreign television, and access to foreign newspapers. We believe that access to foreign media sources can vastly increase the level of freedom in a country not only by providing individuals with much more information than is locally available but also by increasing media competition and strengthening the role the media often play as a watchdog and exponent of transparency in government. The last component in this category gauges state control over internet access; this is an increasingly important measure of freedom of expression as use of the internet spreads and government efforts to control it become more sophisticated and frequent.

Identity and Relationships

We measure what we broadly categorize as freedoms to establish one's own identity and to have intimate and familial relationships with others.

One of the most personal decisions individuals can make regards their sexual and gender identity. Legal gender measures the degree to which people are free to legally change their sex and gender. The next component rates the freedom of individuals to establish same-sex relationships. It is composed of two variables from the International Lesbian and Gay Association: a male-to-male relationship indicator that gauges the extent to which sexual relationships between men are legal and a female-to-female indicator that gauges the same for relationships between women. The last component measures “whether women and men have the same legal rights to initiate divorce and have the same requirements for divorce or annulment.”

Economic Freedom Measures

The 42 indicators that make up the economic freedom subindex fall into five broad categories. A complete description of the economic freedom structure and index methodology can be found in the Fraser Institute’s Economic Freedom of the World annual reports. The first category is size of government. It measures taxation, government spending, and government investment in and control of enterprises. An increase in those indicators reduces economic freedom because it crowds out individual choice. The second category regards the legal system and property rights; it gauges the level of protection of people and their property rights through indicators of the impartiality of courts, judicial independence, and the enforcement of contracts, among others.

Sound money constitutes the third category. To the extent that a country’s money is not a reliable store of value, it undermines exchange, hinders economic planning, distorts prices, and, through inflation, serves as a tax. The inflation rate and its volatility are among the indicators measured here. The fourth category is freedom to trade internationally; it measures tariff rates, nontariff trade barriers, and controls on capital movement, among other indicators. The fifth category regards the regulation of business, labor, and credit. To the extent that government restricts competition in business, voluntary arrangements among employers and employees, and freedom of exchange in credit markets, economic freedom is reduced. Areas measured include interest rate controls, hiring and firing regulations, and licensing restrictions, among others.

The top five jurisdictions in the Human Freedom Index for 2018 are New Zealand, Switzerland, Hong Kong, Denmark, and Australia. The bottom five are, in descending order, Iran, Yemen, Venezuela, Sudan, and Syria. (See Table 3.) Other selected countries rank as follows: Canada (6), Germany and Sweden (tied in 9th place), the United Kingdom and the United States (tied in 17th place), South Korea (26), Chile (30), France (33), South Africa and Indonesia (tied in 68th place), Ghana (72), Malaysia (83) Mexico and Colombia (tied in 86th place), India (111), Russia (115), Turkey (119), China (129), Nigeria (131), Pakistan (140), Saudi Arabia (151), Egypt (157), and Iran (158).

The average human freedom rating for 162 countries in 2018 was 6.93 on a scale of 0 to 10, where 10 represents more freedom. The level of freedom improved scarcely (0.01) in 2018 compared with 2017, with 87 countries increasing their ratings and 70 decreasing. A comparison of only the 141 jurisdictions for which the same data are available from 2008 to 2018 (the HFI surveys 21 more countries in 2018 than in 2008) shows that the average human freedom rating decreased by 0.04, with personal freedom falling from 7.42 to 7.21 and economic freedom increasing from 6.81 to 6.94 (see Figure 1). Some 70 countries increased their overall freedom ratings from 2008 to 2018, while 70 countries decreased their freedom ratings.

The data show that there is an unequal distribution of freedom in the world. Fifteen percent of the world's population lives in the top quartile of nations in the index, while 34 percent of the world's population lives in the bottom quartile of countries that have the lowest levels of freedom.¹⁸ China plays a large role in that disparity because it finds itself in the lowest freedom quartile of the index. Moreover, the gap between the most free and the least free countries has widened. Since 2008, it has increased by 6 percent when comparing the top and bottom 10 percent of nations in the Human Freedom Index. The gap between the top and bottom quartile has also grown by a similar degree (5 percent) during the same time period. These trends can be seen in Figure 2, which shows both the decrease in overall global freedom and the growing inequality in global freedom over the past decade.

Since 2008, the countries that improved their level of human freedom most are Sri Lanka, Myanmar, Zimbabwe, Taiwan, and the Dominican Republic. The largest deteriorations in freedom occurred in Iran, Bahrain, Egypt, Syria, and Venezuela (see Figure 3).

Other countries saw notable deteriorations during this time. The rating for Turkey fell from 7.04 in 2008 to 6.30 in 2018; Hungary's rating decreased from 8.14 to 7.61; Greece's score dropped from 7.79 to 7.34; and Poland's rating fell from 8.10 to 7.77.¹⁹

The correlation between the personal and economic freedom ratings was 0.71 for 2018 (see Figure 4). Some countries ranked consistently high in the human freedom subindexes, including Switzerland, New Zealand, and Australia, each of which ranked in the top 10 in both personal and economic freedom. By contrast, some countries that ranked high on personal freedom ranked significantly lower in economic freedom. For example, Sweden ranked 1st in personal freedom but 46th in economic freedom; Norway ranked 3rd in personal freedom but 43rd in economic freedom; and Argentina ranked 37th in personal freedom but 144th in economic freedom.

Personal Freedom and Economic Freedom, 2018

Similarly, some countries that ranked high in economic freedom found themselves significantly lower in personal freedom. For example, Singapore ranked 2nd in economic freedom while ranking 53rd in personal freedom; Jordan ranked 39th in economic freedom but 113th in personal freedom; and Malaysia ranked 46th in economic freedom but tied Jordan in personal freedom by ranking 113th.

Figure 5 shows that nations in the top quartile of personal freedom saw a high economic freedom score of 7.75, compared with an economic freedom score of 5.98 for bottom-quartile nations.

Of the 12 major categories that make up the index, all except 5 saw some deterioration since 2008 (comparing the same 141 countries for which we have the same data for both 2008 and 2018). Religion, Identity and Relationships, and

Rule of Law saw the largest decreases in freedom since 2008, while Sound Money saw the largest improvement (see Figure 6).

Regional levels of freedom vary widely. The average ratings on the Human Freedom Index by region were highest for North America (Canada and the United States), Western Europe, and East Asia; they were lowest for South Asia, sub-Saharan Africa, and the Middle East and North Africa. The largest improvement in freedom since 2017 occurred in the Caucasus and Central Asia (0.07), while the largest deterioration occurred in North America (-0.08). In comparing the same 141 countries for which we have the same data in 2008 and in 2018, we find that the largest improvement in freedom since 2008 occurred in the Caucasus and Central Asia (0.28) and East Asia (0.14), while the largest deterioration in freedom occurred in the least free region, the Note: The changes in the categories' scores over time are based on a comparison of the same 141 countries for which we have the same data in 2008 and 2018. We have omitted the Legal Gender indicator from the calculations used in this figure because it is the only indicator in the HFI that does not appear in every year.

Middle East and North Africa (-0.38), followed by Oceania (-0.16) (see Figure 7). The regions that had greater overall levels of freedom also tended to exhibit higher ratings in personal freedom relative to economic freedom than did the less free. That is consistent with the findings in Figure 5, that the countries with high levels of personal freedom also have high levels of economic freedom.

The personal freedom subindex includes five indicators that relate to women-specific freedoms: female genital mutilation, equal inheritance rights, women's freedom of movement, female-to-female relationships, and divorce. Although they surely fall short of capturing a complete measure of women's freedoms, the indicators cover a large range of important information and are likely correlated with other women-specific indicators of liberty not represented in cross-country data. Here we have averaged the five components to get average ratings by region of women-specific personal freedom. Following that calculation, Figure 8 shows high levels of women-specific freedom in most regions of the world, with lesser freedom in South Asia (7.12), sub-Saharan Africa (6.29), and the Middle East and North Africa (4.11). No regions have seen a decline since 2017, while two regions have seen slight improvements: Latin America and the Caribbean (0.06) and sub-Saharan Africa (0.04). In comparison, the largest deteriorations in women-specific freedom since 2008 (based on the same 141 countries for which we have data in both 2008 and 2018) occurred in the least free region, the Middle East and North Africa (-1.83), followed by Oceania (-0.90) and Latin America and the Caribbean (-0.36).

The fall in personal freedom in the past decade has driven the decline in human freedom in the world, with some indicators and some regions seeing especially marked deterioration. The weakening of the global rule of law ratings, for example, is led by its worsening performance in South Asia, sub-Saharan Africa, the Middle East and North Africa, and Latin America and the Caribbean. Freedom of association, assembly, and civil society has suffered particularly in Eastern Europe and sub-Saharan Africa. The majority of regions, by contrast, saw decreases in freedom of religion, with the most notable drops occurring in South Asia, the Middle East and North Africa, and North America, where harassment and hostilities toward particular religious groups have risen in recent years (see Figure 9).

Does human freedom matter for development? There is a strong relationship between the level of freedom and income. Figure 10 shows that countries in the freest quartile enjoy significantly greater average per capita income ($50,340) than those in the other quartiles. On average, the freest countries in the world have a much higher per capita income than those that are less free.

Figure 11 shows this relationship by region. The data, of course, do not establish a means of causation or even the direction of causation and provide only a snapshot in time. But the data suggest the need to explore the links between freedom and development further and to test the contribution of freedom to prosperity and other indicators of human well-being, as has been done in the case of policies and institutions supportive of economic freedom.

It is worth noting that in Figure 11, the Middle East and North Africa is an outlier, with a level of income beyond what might be expected given its level of freedom. However, the picture is distorted by the presence of the Gulf oil states. For illustration purposes, we also show the relationship with Gulf states removed.

What is the relationship between freedom and democracy? We use our index and the Democracy Index developed by the Economist Intelligence Unit (EIU) to see how political freedom and human freedom relate. The EIU constructs an index that produces a “wide” measure of democracy rather than a more limited measure of the existence of free and fair elections. The EIU's Democracy Index covers five areas, of which we use the following four: electoral process and pluralism, functioning of government, political participation, and political culture. That index also measures civil liberties, but we set those elements aside because that area is included in our freedom index.

There is a strong correlation of 0.84 between freedom and democracy (see Figure 12). The findings are not surprising, but they offer rich opportunities to empirically examine a complex relationship in which the direction of causation or support between the two variables, if any, may strengthen or weaken over time and may be influenced by numerous other factors, including the level of development.

Given the relationship between freedom and democracy, Hong Kong's high ranking in our index may be somewhat unexpected. The territory, first administered by the United Kingdom as a colony and since 1997 governed by the Chinese Communist Party under the “one country, two systems” model, has never experienced full democracy. Hong Kong’s maintenance of a high degree of freedom for a long period of time indeed makes it an outlier in our survey. The pro-democracy protests that erupted in Hong Kong in 2014 and that reemerged with greater force in 2019 may in part be a late manifestation of a pattern we have seen in other nondemocracies that liberalized their economies and subsequently liberalized their political systems as wealth and demands for political freedoms rose. Hong Kong is unique in that it long enjoyed high levels not only of economic freedom but also of personal freedom and income without transitioning to democracy. The strong popular support for Hong Kong’s institutions,²⁰ including the rule of law and personal freedom, may explain the stability its system until recent years enjoyed. Attacks on those institutions, particularly the rule of law, sparked massive demonstrations, with pro-freedom forces dominating elected constituencies.

However, the Chinese Communist Party’s increasing interference in Hong Kong, including its infringements on freedom of the press and the independence of the legal system, helps explain the decline in the territory’s HFI ratings and rankings since 2008, particularly in personal freedom. Hong Kong in 2018 ranked 32nd with a score of 8.53, down from a score of 9.00 and a rank of 21st in 2008. Because this year’s report is based on data through 2018, however, it does not reflect the impact of Beijing’s more egregious interventions in 2019 and 2020, such as its imposition of a draconian security law that undermines Hong Kong’s traditional freedoms. The data in future reports will speak for themselves, but we will be surprised if Hong Kong’s freedoms are not noticeably degraded, especially in the areas of freedom of expression, the rule of law, and freedom of association, assembly, and civil society.

CONCLUSION: TOWARD A BETTER APPRECIATION OF FREEDOM

The Human Freedom Index provides a comprehensive measure of freedom for a large number of countries around the world. Devising an index of this kind is a complex task, both conceptually and methodologically, because the literature does not provide clear guidance, much less consensus, as to the relative importance of the many different elements that make up freedom or as to proper ways of measuring them. Reasonable people can disagree about the difficult but considered decisions we have made in terms of the structure and relative importance of the measures we have chosen. We invite them to use the data presented here to propose alternative weighting or structural approaches that seem more sensible to them. Because of the challenges in putting together a broad measure of human freedom, this work in progress is certainly not the last word on the extent of freedom in countries around the world. But we do think this index is quite reasonable and hope it will be useful in exploring and demonstrating the value of individual liberty and the ways in which it correlates with other aspects of various societies.

Even if this study confirms some of what we expected to observe, it is worth echoing Milton Friedman when he referred to the creation of the economic freedom index: “What we have done is to acquire a set of data that can be used to explore just how the relation works, and what are the essential connections, and that will enable skeptics to test their views objectively.”²¹

Indeed, the Economic Freedom of the World index has served just that purpose and more, producing an abundant literature on the link between economic freedom and phenomena as diverse as foreign aid, armed conflict, and happiness. The Human Freedom Index has the potential to do as much and looks increasingly important at a time when the world’s leading market democracies struggle with economic problems and when hybrid forms of authoritarianism are being sold as viable alternatives to liberalism. Over time, this index could not only track specific gains and losses of freedom, it could also help to identify and explain what links may exist among the assortment of freedoms and other variables. What are the relationships among personal freedom, economic freedom, and democracy at different levels of development? Are some types of freedom, economic or personal, more conducive to the spread and sustenance of other freedoms? What is the relationship between various measures of human well-being (including income) and changes in personal freedom? Under what conditions are increases or decreases in freedom likely to come about? Delving into those and innumerable other questions that the data may help us answer will surely lead to a better understanding of the role of freedom in human progress.

METHODOLOGY AND SOURCES*

PERSONAL FREEDOM

1. LEGAL PROTECTION AND SECURITY

1A. RULE OF LAW

1Ai. Procedural Justice

This component is calculated as an average of selected Rule of Law Index subfactors: “4.2 The right to life and security of the person is effectively guaranteed,” “4.3 Due process of law and rights of the accused,” and “4.6 Freedom from arbitrary interference with privacy is effectively guaranteed.” A continuous score ranges from 0 to 10, where a rating of 10 is assigned to countries with full adherence to the rule of law from the perspective of how ordinary people experience it and a 0 rating is assigned to countries with no adherence to the rule of law from the perspective of how ordinary people experience it.

Source: World Justice Project, Rule of Law Index.

1Aii. Civil Justice

This component is calculated as an average of selected Rule of Law Index subfactors: “7.1 People can access and afford civil justice,” “7.2 Civil justice is free of discrimination,” “7.3 Civil justice is free of corruption,” “7.4 Civil justice is free of improper government influence,” “7.5 Civil justice is not subject to unreasonable delay,” “7.6 Civil justice is effectively enforced,” and “7.7 Alternative dispute resolution is accessible, impartial, and effective.” A continuous score ranges from 0 to 10, where 0 means no adherence to the rule of law from the perspective of how ordinary people experience it and 10 means full adherence to the rule of law from the perspective of how ordinary people experience it.

Source: World Justice Project, Rule of Law Index.

1Aiii. Criminal Justice

This component is calculated as an average of selected Rule of Law Index subfactors: “8.1 Criminal investigation system is effective,” “8.2 Criminal adjudication system is timely and effective,” “8.3 Correctional system is effective in reducing criminal behavior,” “8.4 Criminal system is impartial,” “8.5 Criminal system is free of corruption,” “8.6 Criminal system is free of improper government influence,” and “8.7 Due process of law and rights of the accused.” A continuous score ranges from 0 to 10, where 0 means no adherence to the rule of law from the perspective of how ordinary people experience it and 10 means full adherence to the rule of law from the perspective of how ordinary people experience it.

* Descriptions are based on material from the data sources and, in some cases, use the same wording.

1B. SECURITY AND SAFETY

1Bi. Homicide

This component is based on the United Nations (UN) Office on Drugs and Crime's data on the intentional homicides per 100,000 population. Countries with more homicides per 100,000 population received lower ratings. A rating of 10 would have been assigned to countries with no homicides per 100,000 population. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries with 25 or more homicides per 100,000 population. Countries with 1 through 24 homicides per 100,000 population received corresponding ratings between 10 and 0.

Source: UN Office on Drugs and Crime, Intentional Homicide database.

1Bii. Disappearances, Conflicts, and Terrorism

1Bii(a). Disappearances

This subcomponent is based on the CI-RIGHTS Dataset on disappearances. Countries with more disappearances received lower ratings. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries with no disappearances. A rating of 5 was assigned to countries with disappearances occurring occasionally. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries with frequently occurring disappearances.

Source: David Cingranelli and Mikhail Filippov, CI-RIGHTS Dataset.

1Bii(b). Violent Conflicts

This subcomponent is based on the Uppsala Conflict Data Program's data on battle-related deaths per one million population. It measures battle-related deaths from armed-conflict behavior between warring parties in a conflict dyad, be it state based or nonstate based. In state-based conflicts, the violence must be directly related to the incompatibility (of the positions of the conflicting parties regarding government or territory)—that is, carried out with the purpose of realizing the goal of the incompatibility and having resulted in deaths. In nonstate-based conflicts, the violence does not have to be related to an incompatibility but must take place between warring parties and result in deaths. All deaths—military as well as civilian—are counted as battle-related deaths. Countries with more battle-related deaths per one million population received lower ratings. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries with no battle-related deaths per one million population. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries with 30 or more battle-related deaths per one million population. Countries with 1 through 29 battle-related deaths per one million population received corresponding ratings between 10 and 0.

Source: Uppsala Conflict Data Program, Battle-Related Deaths Dataset.

1Bii(c). Organized Conflicts

This subcomponent is based on the Economist Intelligence Unit's qualitative assessment of the intensity of conflicts within the country. Countries with higher intensity of conflicts received lower ratings. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries with very low intensity of conflicts. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries with very high intensity of conflicts. Countries in between received ratings of 7.5, 5.0, and 2.5, accordingly.

Source: Economist Intelligence Unit, Internal Organized Conflict Dataset.

1Bii(d). Terrorism Fatalities

This subcomponent is based on the University of Maryland's Global Terrorism Database on the confirmed terrorism fatalities. The number includes all victims and attackers who died as a direct result of the incident. Countries with more confirmed terrorism fatalities per one million population received lower ratings. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries with no confirmed terrorism fatalities per one million population. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries with 30 or more confirmed terrorism fatalities per one million population. Countries with 1 through 29 confirmed terrorism fatalities per one million population received corresponding ratings between 10 and 0.

Source: University of Maryland, Global Terrorism Database.

1Bii(e). Terrorism Injuries

This subcomponent is based on the University of Maryland's Global Terrorism Database on the confirmed terrorism nonfatal injuries to both perpetrators and victims. Countries with more confirmed terrorism nonfatal injuries per one million population received lower ratings. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries with no confirmed terrorism nonfatal injuries per one million population. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries with 50 or more confirmed terrorism nonfatal injuries per one million population. Countries with 1 through 49 confirmed terrorism nonfatal injuries per one million population received corresponding ratings between 10 and 0.

1Biii. Women's Security and Safety

1Biii(a). Female Genital Mutilation

This subcomponent measures the percentage of women ages 15–49 years in the country who have undergone any type of female genital mutilation. A continuous score ranges from 0 to 10, where a rating of 10 was assigned to countries with no prevalence of female genital mutilation and a rating of 0 was assigned to countries with complete prevalence of female genital mutilation.

Source: United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), Global Database.

1Biii(b). Inheritance Rights

This subcomponent measures whether women and men have the same legal rights to inheritance of land and non-land assets. A rating of 10 was applied to countries where widows and daughters enjoy the same rights as widowers and sons to inherit land and non-land assets. A rating of 7.5 was assigned to countries where widows and daughters in all groups enjoy the same rights as widowers and sons to inherit land and non-land assets but where some customary, religious, or traditional laws discriminate against women's inheritance rights. A rating of 5 was assigned to countries where widows and daughters enjoy the same rights as widowers and sons to inherit land and non-land assets but where this right does not apply to all groups of women. A rating of 2.5 was assigned to countries where widows or daughters do not enjoy the same rights as widowers and sons to inherit land and/or non-land assets. A rating of 0 was applied to countries where both widows and daughters do not enjoy the same rights as widowers and sons to inherit land and/or non-land assets. For 2008–2016, this subcomponent is an average of two measurements: inheritance rights of widows and inheritance rights of daughters.

2. SPECIFIC PERSONAL FREEDOMS

2A. MOVEMENT

2Ai. Freedom of Domestic Movement

This component is based on the CI-RIGHTS Dataset on the citizens' freedom to travel within their own country. Countries with more freedom of domestic movement received higher ratings. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries with unrestricted freedom of domestic movement. A rating of 5 was assigned to countries with some restrictions on freedom of domestic movement. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries with severe restrictions on freedom of domestic movement.

Source: David Cingranelli and Mikhail Filippov, CI-RIGHTS Dataset.

2Aii. Freedom of Foreign Movement

This component is based on the CI-RIGHTS Dataset on the citizens' freedom to leave and return to their country. Countries with more freedom of foreign movement received higher ratings. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries with unrestricted freedom of foreign movement. A rating of 5 was assigned to countries with some restrictions on freedom of foreign movement. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries with severe restrictions on freedom of foreign movement.

Source: David Cingranelli and Mikhail Filippov, CI-RIGHTS Dataset.

2Aiii. Women's Freedom of Movement

This component measures whether women and men have the same legal rights to apply for national identity cards, to apply for passports, and to travel outside the country. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries where women and men have the same rights to apply for national identity cards (if applicable) and passports and to travel outside the country, without legal exceptions regarding some groups of women. Customary, religious, and traditional laws or practices do not discriminate against those rights. A rating of 7.5 was assigned to countries where women and men have the same rights to apply for national identity cards (if applicable) and passports and to travel outside the country, without legal exceptions regarding some groups of women. However, some customary, traditional, or religious practices or laws discriminate against those rights. A rating of 5 was assigned to countries where women and men have the same rights to apply for national identity cards (if applicable) and passports and to travel outside the country but where that right does not apply to all groups of women. A rating of 2.5 was assigned to countries where women lack the same rights as men either to apply for national identity cards (if applicable) or passports or to travel outside the country. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries where women lack the same rights as men both to apply for national identity cards (if applicable) or passports and to travel outside the country. For 2013–2016, this component measures whether women face restrictions on their freedom of movement and access to public space. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries where the law guarantees the same rights to freely move to both women and men. A rating of 5 was assigned to countries where the law guarantees the same rights to freely move to women and men but where there are some customary, traditional, or religious practices that discriminate against women. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries where the law does not guarantee the same rights to freely move to women and men or where women have no freedom of movement.

For 2008–2012, this component measures whether legal restrictions or discriminatory practices affected women's access to public space—for example, restrictions on women's choice of domicile, restricted ability to visit family and friends, requirements for husband's approval to apply for a passport, or widespread threats of political violence. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries with no legal restrictions and where no discriminatory practice was reported. A rating of 5 was assigned to countries with no legal restrictions but where discriminatory practices were widely reported. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries with legal restrictions or discriminatory practices that were widespread.

2B. RELIGION

2Bi. Freedom of Religion

This indicator specifies the extent to which individuals and groups have the right to choose a religion, change their religion, and practice that religion in private or in public as well as to proselytize peacefully without being subject to restrictions by public authorities.

Responses:

- 0: Not respected by public authorities. Hardly any freedom of religion exists. Any kind of religious practice is outlawed or at least controlled by the government to the extent that religious leaders are appointed by and subjected to public authorities, who control the activities of religious communities in some detail.
- 1: Weakly respected by public authorities. Some elements of autonomous organized religious practices exist and are officially recognized. But significant religious communities are repressed, prohibited, or systematically disabled; voluntary conversions are restricted; and instances of discrimination or intimidation of individuals or groups due to their religion are common.
- 2: Somewhat respected by public authorities. Autonomous organized religious practices exist and are officially recognized. Yet minor religious communities are repressed, prohibited, or systematically disabled, and/or instances of discrimination or intimidation of individuals or groups due to their religion occur occasionally.
- 3: Mostly respected by public authorities. There are minor restrictions on the freedom of religion, predominantly limited to a few isolated cases. Minority religions face denial of registration, hindrance of foreign missionaries from entering the country, restrictions against proselytizing, or hindrance to access to or construction of places of worship.
- 4: Fully respected by public authorities. The population enjoys the right to practice any religious belief they choose. Religious groups may organize, select, and train personnel; solicit and receive contributions; publish; and engage in consultations without undue interference. If religious communities have to register, public authorities do not abuse the process to discriminate against a religion and do not constrain the right to worship before registration.

These responses are reported using a Bayesian aggregation methodology created for the Varieties of Democracy project, which maps them to the scale of a mean value of 0 and a standard deviation of 1. We in turn map this to our 0-to-10 scale by assigning scores of -2.5 or lower a score of 0 and scores of +2.5 or higher a 10, with scores within that interval assigned scores that are interpolated linearly.

2Bii. Religious Organization Repression

This component is from this V-Dem database question: Does the government attempt to repress religious organizations?

Responses:

0: Severely. The government violently and actively pursues all real and even some imagined members of religious organizations. It seeks not only to deter the activity of such groups but also to effectively liquidate them. Examples include Stalinist Russia and Maoist China.

1: Substantially. In addition to the kinds of harassment outlined in 2 and 3 below, the government also arrests, tries, and imprisons leaders of and participants in oppositional religious organizations who have acted lawfully. Other sanctions include disruption of public gatherings and violent sanctions of activists (beatings, threats to families, destruction of valuable property).

2: Moderately. In addition to material sanctions outlined in 3 below, the government also engages in minor legal harassment (detentions, short-term incarceration) to dissuade religious organizations from acting or expressing themselves. The government may also restrict the scope of their actions through measures that restrict association of religious civil society organizations with each other or political parties, bar religious civil society organizations from taking certain actions, or block international contacts.

3: Weakly. The government uses material sanctions (fines, firings, denial of social services) to deter oppositional religious organizations from acting or expressing themselves. They may also use burdensome registration or incorporation procedures to slow the formation of new religious civil society organizations and sidetrack them from engagement. The government may also organize parallel religious organizations to crowd out independent religious organizations.

4: No. Religious civil society organizations are free to organize, associate, strike, express themselves, and criticize the government without fear of government sanctions or harassment.

These responses are reported using a Bayesian aggregation methodology created for the Varieties of Democracy project, which maps them to the scale of a mean value of 0 and a standard deviation of 1. We in turn map this to our 0-to-10 scale by assigning scores of -2.5 or lower a score of 0 and scores of +2.5 or higher a 10, with scores within that interval assigned scores that are interpolated linearly.

2C. ASSOCIATION, ASSEMBLY, AND CIVIL SOCIETY

2Ci. Civil Society: Entry and Exit

This component is from this V-Dem database question: To what extent does the government achieve control over entry and exit by civil society organizations (CSOs) into public life?

Responses:

- 0: Monopolistic control. The government exercises an explicit monopoly over CSOs. The only organizations allowed to engage in political activity such as endorsing parties or politicians, sponsoring public issues forums, organizing rallies or demonstrations, engaging in strikes, or publicly commenting on public officials and policies are government-sponsored organizations. The government actively represses those who attempt to defy its monopoly on political activity.
- 1: Substantial control. The government licenses all CSOs and uses political criteria to bar organizations that are likely to oppose the government. There are at least some citizen-based organizations that play a limited role in politics independent of the government. The government actively represses those who attempt to flout its political criteria and bars them from any political activity.
- 2: Moderate control. Whether the government ban on independent CSOs is partial or full, some prohibited organizations manage to play an active political role. Despite its ban on organizations of this sort, the government does not or cannot repress them, due to either its weakness or political expedience.
- 3: Minimal control. Whether or not the government licenses CSOs, there exist constitutional provisions that allow the government to ban organizations or movements that have a history of anti-democratic action in the past (e.g., the banning of neo-fascist or communist organizations in the Federal Republic of Germany). Such banning takes place under strict rule of law and conditions of judicial independence.
- 4: Unconstrained. Whether or not the government licenses CSOs, the government does not impede their formation and operation unless they are engaged in activities to violently overthrow the government.

These responses are reported using a Bayesian aggregation methodology created for the Varieties of Democracy project, which maps them to the scale of a mean value of 0 and a standard deviation of 1. We in turn map this to our 0-to-10 scale by assigning scores of -2.5 or lower a score of 0 and scores of +2.5 or higher a 10, with scores within that interval assigned scores that are interpolated linearly.

2Ciii. Freedom to Form Political Parties

2Ciii(a). Barriers to Parties

This component is from this V-Dem database question: How restrictive are the barriers to forming a party? Clarification: Barriers include legal requirements such as requirements for membership or financial deposits, as well as harassment.

Responses:

- 0: Parties are not allowed.
- 1: It is impossible, or virtually impossible, for parties not affiliated with the government to form (legally).
- 2: There are significant obstacles (e.g., party leaders face high levels of regular political harassment by authorities).
- 3: There are modest barriers (e.g., party leaders face occasional political harassment by authorities).
- 4: There are no substantial barriers.

These responses are reported using a Bayesian aggregation methodology created for the Varieties of Democracy project, which maps them to the scale of a mean value of 0 and a standard deviation of 1. We in turn map this to our 0-to-10 scale by assigning scores of -2.5 or lower a score of 0 and scores of +2.5 or higher a 10, with scores within that interval assigned scores that are interpolated linearly.

2Ciii(b). Party Bans

This component is from this V-Dem database question: Are any parties banned? Clarification: This does not apply to parties that are barred from competing for failing to meet registration requirements or support thresholds.

Responses:

- 0: Yes. All parties except the state-sponsored party (and closely allied parties) are banned.
- 1: Yes. Elections are non-partisan or there are no officially recognized parties.

- 2: Yes. Many parties are banned.
- 3: Yes. But only a few parties are banned.
- 4: No. No parties are officially banned.

These responses are reported using a Bayesian aggregation methodology created for the Varieties of Democracy project, which maps them to the scale of a mean value of 0 and a standard deviation of 1. We in turn map this to our 0-to-10 scale by assigning scores of -2.5 or lower a score of 0 and scores of +2.5 or higher a 10, with scores within that interval assigned scores that are interpolated linearly.

2Civ. Opposition Parties Autonomy

This component is from this V-Dem database question: Are opposition parties independent and autonomous of the ruling regime? Clarification: An opposition party is any party that is not part of the government—i.e., that has no control over the executive.

Responses:

- 0: Opposition parties are not allowed.
- 1: There are no autonomous, independent opposition parties. Opposition parties are either selected or co-opted by the ruling regime.
- 2: At least some opposition parties are autonomous and independent of the ruling regime.
- 3: Most significant opposition parties are autonomous and independent of the ruling regime.
- 4: All opposition parties are autonomous and independent of the ruling regime.

These responses are reported using a Bayesian aggregation methodology created for the Varieties of Democracy project, which maps them to the scale of a mean value of 0 and a standard deviation of 1. We in turn map this to our 0-to-10 scale by assigning scores of -2.5 or lower a score of 0 and scores of +2.5 or higher a 10, with scores within that interval assigned scores that are interpolated linearly.

Source: V-Dem Institute, Varieties of Democracy.

2Cv. Civil Society Repression

This component is from this V-Dem database question: Does the government attempt to repress civil society organizations (CSOs)?

Responses:

- 0: Severely. The government violently and actively pursues all real and even some imagined members of CSOs. They seek not only to deter the activity of such groups but to effectively liquidate them.
Examples include Stalinist Russia, Nazi Germany, and Maoist China.
- 1: Substantially. In addition to the kinds of harassment outlined in responses 2 and 3 below, the government also arrests, tries, and imprisons leaders of and participants in oppositional CSOs who have acted lawfully. Other sanctions include disruption of public gatherings and violent sanctions of activists (beatings, threats to families, destruction of valuable property). Examples include Mugabe's Zimbabwe, Poland under martial law, and Serbia under Milošević.

2: Moderately. In addition to material sanctions outlined in response 3 below, the government also engages in minor legal harassment (detentions, short-term incarceration) to dissuade CSOs from acting or expressing themselves. The government may also restrict the scope of their actions through measures that restrict association of civil society organizations with each other or political parties, bar civil society organizations from taking certain actions, or block international contacts. Examples include post-martial law Poland, Brazil in the early 1980s, and the late Franco period in Spain.

3: Weakly. The government uses material sanctions (fines, firings, denial of social services) to deter oppositional CSOs from acting or expressing themselves. They may also use burdensome registration or incorporation procedures to slow the formation of new civil society organizations and sidetrack them from engagement. The government may also organize government-organized movements or nongovernmental organizations (GONGOs) to crowd out independent organizations. One example would be Singapore in the post-Yew phase or Putin's Russia.

4: No. Civil society organizations are free to organize, associate, strike, express themselves, and to criticize the government without fear of government sanctions or harassment.

These responses are reported using a Bayesian aggregation methodology created for the Varieties of Democracy project, which maps them to the scale of a mean value of 0 and a standard deviation of 1. We in turn map this to our 0-to-10 scale by assigning scores of -2.5 or lower a score of 0 and scores of +2.5 or higher a 10, with scores within that interval assigned scores that are interpolated linearly.

2D. EXPRESSION AND INFORMATION

2Di. Press Killed

This component measures journalists killed covering news or offering comment on public affairs in print, in photographs, on radio, on television, or online. As such, the component includes writers, editors, publishers, producers, technicians, photographers, camera operators, and directors of news organizations. Countries with three or more journalists killed per 100,000 population earn a rating of 0. As the number of journalists killed per 100,000 population moves toward zero, the rating for this component moves toward 10. A 10 rating is assigned to countries with no journalists killed.

Source: Committee to Protect Journalists, Killed Census.

2Dii. Press Jailed

This component measures journalists imprisoned for covering news or offering comment on public affairs in print, in photographs, on radio, on television, or online. As such, the component includes writers, editors, publishers, producers, technicians, photographers, camera operators, and directors of news organizations. Countries with 1 or more journalists imprisoned per one million population earn a rating of 0. As the number of journalists imprisoned per one million population moves toward zero, the rating for this component moves toward 10. A rating of 10 is assigned to countries with no journalists imprisoned.

Source: Committee to Protect Journalists, Prison Census.

2Diii. Media Freedom

This component is from the D1 category in the Freedom in the World methodology: Are there free and independent media? (Note: “Media” refers to all relevant sources of news and commentary—including formal print, broadcast, and online news outlets, as well as social media and communication applications when they are used to gather or disseminate news and commentary for the general public. The question also applies to artistic works in any medium.)

Questions include: Are the media directly or indirectly censored? Is self-censorship common among journalists (the term includes professional journalists, bloggers, and citizen journalists), especially when reporting on sensitive issues, including politics, social controversies, corruption, or the activities of powerful individuals? Are journalists subject to pressure or surveillance aimed at identifying their sources? Are libel, blasphemy, security, or other restrictive laws used to punish journalists who scrutinize government officials and policies or other powerful entities through either onerous fines or imprisonment? Is it a crime to insult the honor and dignity of the president and/or other government officials? How broad is the range of such prohibitions, and how vigorously are they enforced? If media outlets are dependent on the government for their financial survival, does the government condition funding on the outlets’ cooperation in promoting official points of view and/or denying access to opposition parties and civic critics? Do powerful private actors engage in similar practices? Do the owners of private media exert improper editorial control over journalists or publishers, skewing news coverage to suit their personal business or political interests? Is media coverage excessively partisan, with the majority of outlets consistently favoring either side of the political spectrum? Does the government attempt to influence media content and access through means including politically motivated awarding or suspension of broadcast frequencies and newspaper registrations, unfair control and influence over printing facilities and distribution networks, blackouts of internet or mobile service, selective distribution of advertising, onerous operating requirements, prohibitive tariffs, and bribery? Are journalists threatened, harassed online, arrested, imprisoned, beaten, or killed by government or nonstate actors for their legitimate journalistic activities, and if such cases occur, are they investigated and prosecuted fairly and expeditiously? Do women journalists encounter gender-specific obstacles to carrying out their work, including threats of sexual violence or strict gender segregation? Are works of literature, art, music, or other forms of cultural expression censored or banned for political purposes?

For the years 2017 and 2018, we translate Freedom House's 0–4 scale by simply multiplying by 2.5 such that the minimum score given is 0 and the maximum score given is 10. Earlier years' data were reported continuously over the interval.

2E. IDENTITY AND RELATIONSHIPS

2Ei. Legal Gender

The component is based on the measures for sex/gender marker change, upon which rating intervals were constructed. Countries with more restrictions and requirements for sex/gender marker change received lower ratings. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries with no requirements for sex/gender marker change. A rating of 7 was assigned to countries with prohibitive medical requirements, including hormonal treatment, sterilization, and genital surgery. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries without a possibility for sex/gender marker change.

2Eii. Same-Sex Relationships

2Eii(a). Male-to-Male Relationships

This subcomponent is based on the International Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Trans and Intersex Association's Sexual Orientation Laws Dataset on male-to-male relationships. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries where male-to-male relationships are legal. A rating of 5 was assigned to countries where male-to-male relationships are legal only in some areas of the country. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries where male-to-male relationships are illegal.

2Eii(b). Female-to-Female Relationships

This subcomponent is based on the International Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Trans and Intersex Association's Sexual Orientation Laws Dataset on female-to-female relationships. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries where female-to-female relationships are legal. A rating of 5 was assigned to countries where female-to-female relationships are legal only in some areas of the country. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries where female-to-female relationships are illegal.

Source: International Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Trans and Intersex Association, Sexual Orientation Laws Dataset.

2Eiii. Divorce

This component measures whether women and men have the same legal rights to initiate divorce and have the same requirements for divorce or annulment. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries where women have both the same rights to initiate divorce and the same requirements to finalize divorce or annulment as men, without negative repercussions on their parental authority. A rating of 7.5 was assigned to countries where women of all groups have both the same rights to initiate divorce and the same requirements to finalize divorce or annulment as men, without negative repercussions on their parental authority, but where some customary, religious, or traditional laws or practices discriminate against women's rights regarding divorce and/or parental authority after divorce. A rating of 5 was assigned to countries where women have both the same rights to initiate divorce and the same requirements to finalize divorce or annulment as men, without negative repercussions on their parental authority, but where this right does not apply to all groups of women. A rating of 2.5 was assigned to countries where women do not have the same rights over divorce as men: either their rights to initiate divorce and/or the requirements to finalize divorce or annulment are unequal, or their parental authority after divorce is restricted. A rating of 0 was assigned to countries where women do not have the same rights over divorce as men: their rights to initiate divorce and/or the requirements to finalize divorce or annulment are unequal and their parental authority after divorce is restricted. For 2008–2016, this component is an average of two measurements: whether women and men have the same right to be the legal guardian of and have custody rights over a child after divorce and the extent to which women and men have the same rights to initiate divorce.

A. SIZE OF GOVERNMENT

Ai. Government Consumption

This component is measured as general government consumption spending as a percentage of total consumption. The rating for this component, as with many of the following components, is designed to mirror the actual distribution of the raw data but on a 0-to-10 scale. The rating is equal to: $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. The V_i is the country's actual government consumption as a proportion of total consumption, while the V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set at 40 and 6, respectively. The 1990 data were used to derive the maximum and minimum values for this component. Countries with a larger proportion of government expenditures received lower ratings. In contrast, as the ratio approaches the maximum value, the ratio moves toward 0.

Sources: World Bank, World Development Indicators; International Monetary Fund, International Financial Statistics; United Nations National Accounts.

Aii. Transfers and Subsidies

This component is measured as general government transfers and subsidies as a share of GDP. The rating for this component is equal to: $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. The V_i is the country's ratio of transfers and subsidies to GDP, while the V_{\max} and V_{\min} values are set at 37.2 and 0.5, respectively. The 1990 data were used to derive the maximum and minimum values for this component. The formula will generate lower ratings for countries with larger transfer sectors. When the size of a country's transfer sector approaches that of the country with the largest transfer sector during the 1990 benchmark year, the rating of the country will approach 0.

Aiii. Government Enterprises and Investment

Data on government investment as a share of total investment were used to construct the 0-to-10 ratings. Countries with more government enterprises and government investment received lower ratings. The rating for this component is equal to: $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. The V_i is the country's ratio of transfers and subsidies to GDP, while the V_{\max} and V_{\min} values are set at 50.0 and 15.0, respectively. Minimum and maximum values were chosen to match the methodology of earlier years, which had categorized regimes instead of mapping data to a linear scale.

Aiv. Top Marginal Tax Rate

Aiv(a). Top Marginal Income Tax Rate

Countries with higher marginal tax rates that take effect at lower income thresholds received lower ratings based on the matrix on page 214 in James Gwartney et al., Economic Freedom of the World: 2020 Annual Report (Vancouver: Fraser Institute, 2020). The income threshold data were converted from local currency to 1982/1984 US dollars (using beginning-of-year exchange rates and the U.S. Consumer Price Index). These figures include subnational rates if applicable.

Aiv(b). Top Marginal Income and Payroll Tax Rates

Countries with higher marginal income and payroll (wage) tax rates that take effect at lower income thresholds received lower ratings based on the matrix on page 214 in James Gwartney et al., Economic Freedom of the World: 2020 Annual Report (Vancouver: Fraser Institute, 2020). The income threshold data were converted from local currency to 1983 US dollars (using beginning-of-year exchange rates and the U.S. Consumer Price Index). These figures include subnational rates if applicable.

Av. State Ownership of Assets

This component is based on ratings from the Varieties of Democracy (V-Dem) data on State Ownership of the Economy, which “gauges the degree to which the state owns and controls capital (including land) in the industrial, agricultural, and service sectors. It does not measure the extent of government revenue and expenditure as a share of total output; indeed, it is quite common for states with expansive fiscal policies to exercise little direct control (and virtually no ownership) over the economy.” The rating for this component is designed to mirror the actual distribution of the raw data, but on a 0-to-10 scale. The rating is equal to:

$(V_i - V_{min}) / (V_{max} - V_{min})$ multiplied by 10. The V_i is the country’s state ownership score, while the V_{max} and V_{min} were set at 2.5 standard deviations above and below the average, respectively. Countries with greater government ownership of assets get lower scores.

B. LEGAL SYSTEM AND PROPERTY RIGHTS

Bi. Judicial Independence

The first source of this component is from the Global Competitiveness Report question: “Is the judiciary in your country independent from political influences of members of government, citizens, or firms? No—heavily influenced (= 1) or Yes—entirely independent (= 7).” The question’s wording has varied slightly over the years. All variables from the Global Competitiveness Report were converted from the original 1-to-7 scale to a 0-to-10 scale using this formula: $EFWi = ((GCRi - 1) \div 6) \times 10$. The second source is a collection of questions from the V-Dem dataset, namely: Judicial Purges, Government Attacks on the Judiciary, Court Packing, High Court Independence, and Low Court Independence. These variables are averaged and scaled to earlier Judicial Independence data via regression. The third data source originates with Linzer and Staton (2015), “A Global Measure of Judicial Independence, 1900–2015.” This data source scores on a 0-to-1 scale, so it was multiplied by 10 to place it on the scale of the other variables. The final number is the average of whichever of these three sources are available.

Sources: World Economic Forum, Global Competitiveness Report; V-Dem Institute, Varieties of Democracy; Drew Linzer and Jeffrey Staton, “A Global Measure of Judicial Independence: 1948–2012,” Journal of Law and Courts 3, no. 2 (2015): 223–56.

Bii. Impartial Courts

The first source of this component is from the Global Competitiveness Report question: “The legal framework in your country for private businesses to settle disputes and challenge the legality of government actions and/or regulations is inefficient and subject to manipulation (= 1) or is efficient and follows a clear, neutral process (= 7).” The question’s wording has varied slightly over the years. The second source of this component is Judicial Corrupt Decision from the V-Dem dataset, which has been scaled to earlier Impartial Courts data via regression. The third is the Rule of Law indicator found in the Worldwide Governance Indicators. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings was $(V_i - V_{\min}) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the component value. The values for V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set at 2.5 and -2.5, respectively. Countries with values outside the V_{\max} and V_{\min} range received ratings of either 0 or 10, accordingly. The final number is the average of whichever of these three sources are available.

Sources: World Economic Forum, Global Competitiveness Report; World Bank, Worldwide Governance Indicators; V-Dem Institute, Varieties of Democracy.

Biii. Protection of Property Rights

The first source of this component is from the Global Competitiveness Report question: “Property rights, including over financial assets, are poorly defined and not protected by law (= 1) or are clearly defined and well protected by law (= 7).” The second source is Property Rights for Men from V-Dem. (An adjustment for the area as a whole is made later to uniformly account for gender disparities.) The V-Dem data have been scaled to earlier Protection of Property Rights data via regression. The third source is Property Rights and Rule-Based Governance from Country Policy and Institutional Assessment data from the World Bank. This has been scaled to the Legal System and Property Rights data via regression. The final number is the average of whichever of these three sources are available.

Biv. Military Interference in Rule of Law and Politics

This component is based on the International Country Risk Guide Political Risk Component G, Military in Politics: “A measure of the military’s involvement in politics. Since the military is not elected, involvement, even at a peripheral level, diminishes democratic accountability. Military involvement might stem from an external or internal threat, be symptomatic of underlying difficulties, or be a full-scale military takeover. Over the long term, a system of military government will almost certainly diminish effective governmental functioning, become corrupt, and create an uneasy environment for foreign businesses.”

Source: PRS Group, International Country Risk Guide.

Bv. Integrity of the Legal System

The first source of this component is based on the International Country Risk Guide Political Risk Component I for Law and Order: “Two measures comprising one risk component. Each subcomponent equals half of the total. The ‘law’ subcomponent assesses the strength and impartiality of the legal system, and the ‘order’ subcomponent assesses popular observance of the law.” The second source is Judicial Accountability, Compliance with the High Court, Judicial Review, Transparent Laws with Predictable Enforcement, and Access to Justice for Men from the V-Dem dataset. (An adjustment for the area as a whole is made later to uniformly account for gender disparities.) These variables are averaged and scaled to earlier Integrity of the Legal System data via regression. The final number is the average of whichever of these two sources is available.

Sources: PRS Group, International Country Risk Guide; V-Dem Institute, Varieties of Democracy.

Bvi. Legal Enforcement of Contracts

This first source of this component is based on the World Bank’s Doing Business estimates for the time and money required to collect a debt. The debt is assumed to equal 200 percent of the country’s per capita income where the plaintiff has complied with the contract and judicial judgment is rendered in his favor. Ratings of 0 to 10 were constructed for (1) the time cost (measured in number of calendar days required from the moment the lawsuit is filed until payment) and (2) the monetary cost of the case (measured as a percentage of the debt). These two ratings were then averaged to arrive at the final rating for this subcomponent. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the time or money cost value. The values for V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set at 725 days and 82.3 percent (1.5 standard deviations above average in 2005) and 62 days (1.5 standard deviations below average in 2005) and 0 percent, respectively. Countries with values outside the range from V_{\max} to V_{\min} received ratings of either 0 or 10, accordingly. The second source of this component is Enforcement of Contracts from the Historical Ratings Research Package by Business Environment Risk Intelligence. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings was $(V_i - V_{\min}) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the component value. The values for V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set at 4 and 0, which corresponds to the range of the variable. The final number is the average of whichever of these two sources is available.

Sources: World Bank, Doing Business; Business Environment Risk Intelligence, Historical Ratings Research Package.

Bvii. Regulatory Costs of the Sale of Real Property

This subcomponent is based on the World Bank’s Doing Business data on the time measured in days and monetary costs required to transfer ownership of property that includes land and a warehouse. Ratings of 0 to 10 were constructed for (1) the time cost (measured in number of calendar days required to transfer ownership) and (2) the monetary cost of transferring ownership (measured as a percentage of the property value). These two ratings were then averaged to arrive at the final rating for this subcomponent. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the time or money cost value. The values for V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set at 265 days and 15 percent (1.5 standard deviations above average in 2005) and 0 days and 0 percent, respectively. Countries with values outside the range from V_{\max} to V_{\min} received ratings of either 0 or 10, accordingly.

Source: World Bank, Doing Business.

Bviii. Reliability of Police

This component is from the Global Competitiveness Report question: “To what extent can police services be relied upon to enforce law and order in your country? (1 = Cannot be relied upon at all; 7 = Can be completely relied upon).”

Source: World Economic Forum, Global Competitiveness Report.

C. SOUND MONEY

Ci. Money Growth

This component measures the average annual growth of the money supply in the past five years minus average annual growth of real GDP in the past 10 years. Countries where growth of the money supply greatly exceeds growth of real output receive lower ratings. The M1 money supply (basically defined as checkable deposits plus currency in circulation) figures were used to measure the growth rate of the money supply. The rating is equal to $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the average annual growth rate of the money supply during the past five years adjusted for the growth of real GDP during the previous 10 years. The values for V_{\min} and V_{\max} were set at 0 and 50 percent, respectively. Therefore, if the adjusted growth rate of the money supply during the past five years was 0, indicating that money growth was equal to the long-term growth of real output, the formula generates a rating of 10. Ratings decline as the adjusted growth of the money supply increases toward 50 percent. When the adjusted annual money growth is equal to (or greater than) 50 percent, a rating of 0 results.

Cii. Standard Deviation of Inflation

This component measures the standard deviation of the inflation rate over the past five years. Generally, the GDP deflator was used as the measure of inflation for this component. When those data were unavailable, the Consumer Price Index was used. The following formula was used to determine the 0-to-10 scale rating for each country: $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the country's standard deviation of the annual rate of inflation during the past five years. The values for V_{\min} and V_{\max} were set at 0 and 25 percent, respectively. This procedure will allocate the highest ratings to the countries with the least variation in the annual rate of inflation. A perfect 10 results when there is no variation in the rate of inflation over the five-year period. Ratings will decline toward 0 as the standard deviation of the inflation rate approaches 25 percent annually.

Ciii. Inflation: Most Recent Year

Generally, the Consumer Price Index was used as the measure of inflation for this component because it is often available before the GDP deflator is available. When those data were unavailable, the GDP deflator inflation rate was used. The 0-to-10 country ratings were derived by the following formula: $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the rate of inflation during the most recent year. The values for V_{\min} and V_{\max} were set at 0 and 50 percent, respectively—the lower the rate of inflation, the higher the rating. Countries that achieve perfect price stability earn a rating of 10. As the annual inflation rate moves toward 50 percent, the rating for this component moves toward 0. A 0 rating is assigned to all countries with an inflation rate of 50 percent or more.

Sources: World Bank, World Development Indicators; International Monetary Fund, International Financial Statistics.

Civ. Freedom to Own Foreign Currency Bank Accounts

When foreign currency bank accounts were permissible without any restrictions both domestically and abroad, the rating was 10; when these accounts were restricted, the rating was 0. If foreign currency bank accounts were permissible domestically but not abroad (or vice versa), the rating was 5.

D. FREEDOM TO TRADE INTERNATIONALLY

Di. Tariffs

Di(a). Revenues from Trade Taxes (% of trade sector)

This subcomponent measures the amount of tax on international trade as a share of exports and imports. The formula used to calculate the ratings for this subcomponent was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the revenue derived from taxes on international trade as a share of the trade sector.

The values for V_{\min} and V_{\max} were set at 0 and 15 percent, respectively. This formula leads to lower ratings as the average tax rate on international trade increases. Countries with no specific taxes on international trade earn a perfect 10. As the revenues from these taxes rise toward 15 percent of international trade, ratings decline toward 0.

Sources: International Monetary Fund, Government Finance Statistics Yearbook; International Monetary Fund, International Financial Statistics.

Di(b). Mean Tariff Rate

This subcomponent is based on the unweighted mean of tariff rates. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 rating for each country was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the country's mean tariff rate. The values for V_{\min} and V_{\max} were set at 0 percent and 50 percent, respectively. This formula will allocate a rating of 10 to countries that do not impose tariffs. As the mean tariff rate increases, countries are assigned lower ratings. The rating will decline toward 0 as the mean tariff rate approaches 50 percent. (Note that, except for two or three extreme observations, all countries have mean tariff rates within this range from 0 percent to 50 percent.)

Source: World Trade Organization, World Tariff Profiles.

Di(c). Standard Deviation of Tariff Rates

Compared with a uniform tariff, wide variations in tariff rates indicate greater efforts toward central planning of the economy's production and consumption patterns. Thus, countries with a greater variation in their tariff rates are given lower ratings. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings for this component was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the standard deviation of the country's tariff rates. The values for V_{\min} and V_{\max} were set at 0 percent and 25 percent, respectively. This formula will allocate a rating of 10 to countries that impose a uniform tariff. As the standard deviation of tariff rates increases toward 25 percent, ratings decline toward 0. (Note that, except for a few very extreme observations, the standard deviations of the tariff rates for the countries in our study fall within this 0 percent to 25 percent range.)

Source: World Trade Organization, World Tariff Profiles.

Dii. Regulatory Trade Barriers

Dii(a). Nontariff Trade Barriers

This subcomponent is based on the Global Competitiveness Report survey question: "In your country, tariff and non-tariff barriers significantly reduce the ability of imported goods to compete in the domestic market. 1–7 (best)." The question's wording has varied slightly over the years. Note, notwithstanding the subcomponent's title, this indicator captures both tariff and nontariff barriers.

Source: World Economic Forum, Global Competitiveness Report.

Dii(b). Compliance Costs of Importing and Exporting

This subcomponent is based on the World Bank's Doing Business data on the time (i.e., nonmoney) cost of procedures required to import a full 20-foot container of dry goods that contains no hazardous or military items. Countries where it takes longer to import or export are given lower ratings. Ratings of 0 to 10 were constructed for (1) the time cost (in hours) associated with border compliance and documentary compliance when exporting and (2) the time cost (in hours) associated with border compliance and documentary compliance when importing. These two ratings were then averaged to arrive at the final rating for this subcomponent. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the time cost value. The values for V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set, respectively, at 228.38 (1.5 standard deviations above average in 2014) and 0 hours for exporting, and 338.00 hours (1.5 standard deviations below average in 2014) and 0 hours for importing. Countries with values outside the V_{\max} and V_{\min} range received ratings of either 0 or 10, accordingly.

Source: World Bank, Doing Business.

Diii. Black-Market Exchange Rates

This component is based on the percentage difference between the official and the parallel (black-market) exchange rate. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings for this component was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i is the country's black-market exchange-rate premium. The values for V_{\min} and V_{\max} were set at 0 percent and 50 percent, respectively. This formula will allocate a rating of 10 to countries without a black-market exchange rate; that is, those with a domestic currency that is fully convertible without restrictions. When exchange rate controls are present and a black market exists, the ratings will decline toward 0 as the black-market premium increases toward 50 percent. A 0 rating is given when the black-market premium is equal to, or greater than, 50 percent.

Div. Controls of the Movement of Capital and People

Div(a). Financial Openness

This subcomponent is based on the Chinn-Ito Index of de jure financial openness. This index is composed of a series of dummy variables that "codify the tabulation of restrictions on cross-border financial transactions reported in the IMF's Annual Report on Exchange Arrangements and Exchange Restrictions.⁷ This data source scores from a 0-to-1 scale, so it was multiplied by 10 to place it on the 0-to-10 scale.

Sources: Menzie D. Chinn and Hiro Ito, "What Matters for Financial Development? Capital Controls, Institutions, and Interactions," Journal of Development Economics 81, no. 1 (2006): 163–91; Menzie D. Chinn and Hiro Ito, "A New Measure of Financial Openness," Journal of Comparative Policy Analysis 10, no. 3 (2008): 309–22.

Div(b). Capital Controls

The International Monetary Fund reports on up to 13 types of international capital controls. The 0-to-10 rating is the percentage of capital controls not levied as a share of the total number of capital controls listed, multiplied by 10.

Source: International Monetary Fund, Annual Report on Exchange Arrangements and Exchange Restrictions.

Div(c). Freedom of Foreigners to Visit

This component measures the percentage of countries for which a country requires a visa from foreign visitors. It reflects the freedom of foreigners to travel to this country for tourist and short-term business purposes. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings was $(V_i - V_{\min}) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the component value. The values for V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set at 47.2 (1 standard deviation above average) and 0. Countries with values outside the V_{\max} and V_{\min} range received ratings of either 0 or 10, accordingly.

E. REGULATION

Ei. Credit Market Regulations

Ei(a). Ownership of Banks

Data on the percentage of bank deposits held in privately owned banks were used to construct rating intervals. Countries with larger shares of privately held deposits received higher ratings. When privately held deposits totaled between 95 percent and 100 percent, countries were given a rating of 10. When private deposits constituted between 75 percent and 95 percent of the total, a rating of 8 was assigned. When private deposits were between 40 percent and 75 percent of the total, the rating was 5. When private deposits totaled between 10 percent and 40 percent, countries received a rating of 2. A 0 rating was assigned when private deposits were 10 percent or less of the total.

Barth, Gerard Caprio, and Ross Levine, Rethinking Bank Regulation: Till Angels Govern (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2006).

Ei(b). Private-Sector Credit

This subcomponent measures the extent of government borrowing relative to private-sector borrowing. Greater government borrowing indicates more central planning and results in lower ratings. If available, this subcomponent is calculated as the government fiscal deficit as a share of gross saving. The formula used to derive the country ratings for this subcomponent was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i is the [absolute value of the] deficit to gross savings ratio, and the values for V_{\max} and V_{\min} are set at 100 percent and 0 percent, respectively. The formula allocates higher ratings as the deficit gets smaller (that is, closer to 0) relative to gross saving. If the deficit data are not available, the component is instead based on the share of private credit relative to total credit extended in the banking sector. Higher values are indicative of greater economic freedom. Thus, the formula used to derive the country ratings for this subcomponent was $(V_i - V_{\min}) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i is the share of the country’s total domestic credit allocated to the private sector and the values for V_{\max} and V_{\min} are set at 99.9 percent and 10.0 percent, respectively. The 1990 data were used to derive the maximum and minimum values for this component. The formula allocates higher ratings as the share of credit extended to the private sector increases.

Sources: World Bank, World Development Indicators; World Economic Forum, Global Competitiveness Report; International Monetary Fund, International Financial Statistics.

Ei(c). Interest Rate Controls/Negative Real Interest Rates

Data on credit-market controls and regulations were used to construct rating intervals. Countries with interest rates determined by the market, stable monetary policy, and reasonable real-deposit and lending-rate spreads received higher ratings. When interest rates were determined primarily by market forces as evidenced by reasonable deposit and lending-rate spreads, and when real interest rates were positive, countries were given a rating of 10. When interest rates were primarily market-determined but the real rates were sometimes slightly negative (less than 5 percent) or the differential between the deposit and lending rates was large (8 percent or more), countries received a rating of 8. When the real deposit or lending rate was persistently negative by a single-digit amount or the differential between them was regulated by the government, countries were rated at 6. When the deposit and lending rates were fixed by the government and the real rates were often negative by single-digit amounts, countries were assigned a rating of 4. When the real deposit or lending rate was persistently negative by a double-digit amount, countries received a rating of 2. A rating of 0 was assigned when the deposit and lending rates were fixed by the government and real rates were persistently negative by double-digit amounts or hyperinflation had virtually eliminated the credit market.

Eii. Labor Market Regulations

Eii(a). Hiring Regulations and Minimum Wage

This subcomponent is based on the “Employing Workers” section of the World Bank’s Doing Business and uses the following components: (1) whether fixed-term contracts are prohibited for permanent tasks; (2) the maximum cumulative duration of fixed-term contracts; and (3) the ratio of the minimum wage for a trainee or first-time employee to the average value added per worker. An economy is assigned a score of 1 if fixed-term contracts are prohibited for permanent tasks and a score of 0 if they can be used for any task. A score of 1 is assigned if the maximum cumulative duration of fixed-term contracts is less than 3 years; 0.5 if it is 3 years or more but less than 5 years; and 0 if fixed-term contracts can last 5 years or more. Finally, a score of 1 is assigned if the ratio of the minimum wage to the average value added per worker is 0.75 or more; 0.67 for a ratio of 0.50 or more but less than 0.75; 0.33 for a ratio of 0.25 or more but less than 0.50; and 0 for a ratio of less than 0.25. More severe labor contract restrictions and/or higher minimum wages result in lower ratings for this subcomponent.

Source: World Bank, Doing Business.

Eii(b). Hiring and Firing Regulations

This subcomponent is based on the Global Competitiveness Report question: “The hiring and firing of workers is impeded by regulations (= 1) or flexibly determined by employers (= 7).” The question’s wording has varied over the years.

Eii(c). Centralized Collective Bargaining

This subcomponent is based on the Global Competitiveness Report question: “Wages in your country are set by a centralized bargaining process (= 1) or up to each individual company (= 7).” The wording of the question has varied over the years.

Eii(d). Hours Regulations

This subcomponent, based on the Employing Labor section in the World Bank's Doing Business, uses the following five components: (1) whether there are restrictions on night work; (2) whether there are restrictions on holiday work; (3) whether the length of the work week can be 5.5 days or longer; (4) whether there are restrictions on overtime work; and (5) whether the average paid annual leave is 21 working days or more. For each question, when the regulations apply, a score of 1 is given. If there are no restrictions, the economy receives a score of 0. The 0-to-10 rating is based on how many of these regulations are in place: no regulations results in a rating of 10; one regulation results in a rating of 8; and so on.

Eii(e). Mandated Cost of Worker Dismissal

This subcomponent is based on the World Bank's Doing Business data on the cost of the advance notice requirements, severance payments, and penalties due when dismissing a redundant worker with 10-years tenure. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the dismissal cost (measured in weeks of wages). The values for V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set at 58 weeks (1.5 standard deviations above average in 2005) and 0 weeks, respectively. Countries with values outside the V_{\max} and V_{\min} range received ratings of either 0 or 10, accordingly.

Eii(f). Conscription

Data on the use and duration of military conscription were used to construct rating intervals. Countries with longer conscription periods received lower ratings. A rating of 10 was assigned to countries without military conscription. When length of conscription was six months or less, countries were given a rating of 5. When length of conscription was more than six months but not more than 12 months, countries were rated at 3. When length of conscription was more than 12 months but not more than 18 months, countries were assigned a rating of 1. When conscription periods exceeded 18 months, countries were rated 0. If conscription was present but apparently not strictly enforced or the length of service could not be determined, the country was given a rating of 3. In cases where it is clear that conscription is never used, even though it may be possible, a rating of 10 is given. If a country's mandated national service includes clear nonmilitary options, the country was given a rating of 5.

Eiii. Business Regulations

Eiii(a). Administrative Requirements

This subcomponent is based on the Global Competitiveness Report question: “Complying with administrative requirements (permits, regulations, reporting) issued by the government in your country is (1 = burdensome, 7 = not burdensome).” The question’s wording has varied slightly over the years.

Source: World Economic Forum, Global Competitiveness Report.

Eiii(b). Bureaucracy Costs

This subcomponent is based on the “Regulatory Burden Risk Ratings” from IHS Markit, which measures “[t]he risk that normal business operations become more costly due to the regulatory environment. This includes regulatory compliance and bureaucratic inefficiency and/or opacity. Regulatory burdens vary across sectors so scoring should give greater weight to sectors contributing the most to the economy.” The raw scores range, roughly, from 0 to 7, with higher values indicating greater risk. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i is the country’s Regulatory Burden rating, while the V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set at 5 and 0.5, respectively. These ratings were first published for 2014, and the 2014 ratings were used for 2012–2013. This source replaces that used previously, the World Economic Forum’s Global Competitiveness Report question: “Standards on product/service quality, energy and other regulations (outside environmental regulations) in your country are: (1 = lax or non-existent, 7 = among the world’s most stringent).”

Eiii(c). Starting a Business

This subcomponent is based on the World Bank’s Doing Business data on the amount of time and money it takes to start a new limited liability business. Countries where it takes longer or is more costly to start a new business are given lower ratings. Ratings of 0 to 10 were constructed for three variables: (1) time (measured in days) necessary to comply with regulations when starting a limited liability company; (2) money costs of the fees paid to regulatory authorities (measured as a share of per capita income); and (3) minimum capital requirements—that is, funds that must be deposited into a company bank account (measured as a share of per capita income). These three ratings were then averaged to arrive at the final rating for this subcomponent. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the variable value. The values for V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set at 104 days, 317 percent, and 1,017 percent (1.5 standard deviations above average in 2005) and 0 days, 0 percent, and 0 percent, respectively. Countries with values outside the V_{\max} and V_{\min} range received ratings of either 0 or 10, accordingly.

Eiii(d). Impartial Public Administration

This subcomponent is based on the “Rigorous and Impartial Public Administration” data from the V-Dem dataset. If nepotism, cronyism, and discrimination are widespread in the application of public administration, countries receive a lower score. The rating is equal to $(V_i - V_{\min}) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. The V_i is the country’s state ownership score, while the V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set at 2.5 standard deviations above and below the average, respectively.

Eiii(e). Licensing Restrictions

This subcomponent is based on the World Bank’s Doing Business data on the time in days and monetary costs required to obtain a license to construct a standard warehouse. Ratings of 0 to 10 were constructed for (1) the time cost (measured in number of calendar days required to obtain a license) and (2) the monetary cost of obtaining the license (measured as a share of per capita income). These two ratings were then averaged to arrive at the final rating for this subcomponent. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the time or money cost value. The values for V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set at 363 days and 2,763 percent (1.5 standard deviations above average in 2005) and 56 days (1.5 standard deviations below average in 2005) and 0 percent, respectively. Countries with values outside the V_{\max} and V_{\min} range received ratings of either 0 or 10, accordingly.

Eiii(f). Cost of Tax Compliance

This subcomponent is based on the World Bank’s Doing Business data on the time required per year for a business to prepare, file, and pay taxes on corporate income, value added or sales taxes, and taxes on labor. The formula used to calculate the 0-to-10 ratings was $(V_{\max} - V_i) / (V_{\max} - V_{\min})$ multiplied by 10. V_i represents the time cost (measured in hours) of tax compliance. The values for V_{\max} and V_{\min} were set at 892 hours (1.5 standard deviations above average in 2005) and 0 hours, respectively. Countries with values outside the V_{\max} and V_{\min} range received ratings of either 0 or 10, accordingly.

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Ian Vásquez is vice president for international studies at the Cato Institute, director of Cato's Center for Global Liberty and Prosperity, and a columnist at El Comercio, a newspaper in Peru.

Fred McMahon is the Dr. Michael A. Walker research chair in economic freedom at the Fraser Institute in Canada. He manages the Economic Freedom of the World Network, an alliance of think tanks in nearly 100 nations and territories. The network produces the Economic Freedom of the World Report, an annual study that ranks nations on economic liberty. He is coauthor of the Economic Freedom of North America. He has worked on economic reform programs in more than a dozen nations and has authored several books and many articles on economic development, both academic and in the popular media. His book, Looking the Gift Horse in the Mouth, about damaging government intervention and spending, won the Sir Antony Fisher Memorial Award.

ABOUT THE COPUBLISHERS

Cato Institute

The Cato Institute is a public policy research foundation dedicated to broadening the parameters of public policy debate to allow consideration of more options that are consistent with the principles of limited government, individual liberty, and peace. To that end, the Institute strives to achieve greater involvement of the intelligent, concerned lay public in questions of policy and the proper role of government through an extensive program of publications and seminars. The Institute is based in Washington, DC.

Fraser Institute

Founded in 1974, the Fraser Institute is an independent research and educational organization with offices across Canada and international partners in over 90 nations and territories. Our mission is to improve the quality of life for Canadians, their families, and future generations by studying, measuring, and broadly communicating the effects of government policies, entrepreneurship, and choice on their well-being. Our work is financed by tax-deductible contributions from thousands of individuals, organizations, and foundations. In order to protect its independence, the Institute does not accept grants from government or contracts for research.
